

Confidence Builds Growth

You don't have to try very hard to hear stories of doom and gloom in the economy. The global financial crisis, receding somewhat slowly, has been further compounded on Australian soil by a series of natural disasters.

So if you're looking for a job, or even worse, trying to start your career, then you can forget about it. Right? Well actually no. A survey of Australian businesses conducted last month shows that 33% intended to increase their permanent head count over the next three months; that's brand new roles with Australian employers that will bolster the economy for all of us.

Whilst we're at it, let's not forget that unemployment stands at its lowest level for two years.

If that's not cause for confidence, then I don't know what is.

Undeniably Australians and Queenslanders in particular have been dealt some very harsh cards over the past year, but our economy was strong and recovering before these disasters and will come back even stronger after them.

I, for one, look forward to more good news over the coming months. Take the opportunity now to build your workforce for the future. Be ready when the economy rebounds. Give us a call NOW.

Professor Ashley W. Goldsworthy AO OBE

Chairman & CEO

smart
EMPLOYMENT
solutions

Springwood
13 30 24
www.sesat.com.au

